EDTA RESTORES SULFATED LEAD ACID BATTERIES

Old or neglected deep cycle batteries can be saved!

EDTA, which is ethylenediaminetetraacetic acid - tetrasodium salt, also known as N,N'-1,2-Ethanediylbis[N-(carboxymethyl)glycine] tetrasodium salt is used to dissolve sulfate deposits from lead acid batteries. The net effect is to lower the cost of battery based electricity by recovering otherwise unusable batteries.

The EDTA is a dry powder. It will dissolve easily in distilled water but not in battery acid. When EDTA has been dissolved in distilled water, the solution will then mix easily with battery acid.

The amount to use depends on the size of the battery and on how much sulfate it has. In general, use one tablespoon per cell in a golf cart battery such as a Trojan T-105. There are approx. 40 tablespoons in one pound. See more details below the ordering information. EDTA has a near infinite shelf life.
